Depot girl from Honesdale wins handicap honor of year

HARRISBURG — A 21-year-old armless Honesdale woman was presented Thursday with the Handicapped Pennsylvanian of the Year Award in Harrisburg.

The presentation to Miss Cheryl L. Maloney, a key-punch operator at Tobyhanna Army Depot, was made by Gov. Shafer at the banquet session of the annual conference of the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

Miss Maloney, a 1965 graduate of the Honesdale public school system, has been employed at the depot since May of this year.

Prior to that she attended Rochester Business Institute where she studied data processing and business administration.

Miss Maloney, 21, trained herself to operate electric accounting machines with her feet.

Prior to joining the staff at Tobyhanna, she worked 16 months as a key punch operator with the Lincoln-Rochester Trust Co., in Rochester.

While at the New York bank, she was named Handicapped Employee of the Year in 1966. "She became so fast," reported Joseph A. Hudson, the bank's senior vice president, "that she trained new key punch operators. She did this with her toes, leaning back in her chair."

"Besides her skill," he added, "she has an ability to teach and a pleasant personality to go with it. She's that good."

Miss Maloney, who was born without arms, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Maloney of Honesdale. She taught herself to do most everything with her feet when she found she could not use artificial limbs.

At Honesdale High School, Miss Maloney was an honor student and played drums in the school orchestra.

Fond of sports, she bowls, snow-skis, plays baseball and miniature golf.

She also drives her own car, steering through a wheel on the floor fitted with a shoe toe, and operating the gas pedal and brake with her left foot.

"The rest of the girls suddenly found they didn't have any real problems after Cheryl arrived," reports Miss DeSales Curran of Olyphant, her supervisor. "She has done wonders for our morale."

Al Woronowicz, Wilkes-Barre, director of Data Systems, says, "Miss Maloney's production is outstanding, and her attendance record has been excellent."

Her ambition is to become a computer programmer for the depot, which she finds "a very good place to work."

Gov. Shafer said the state's industrial development team has brought more than 4,000 new plants and plant expansions and 300,000 new jobs to Pennsylvania in the last six years.

Highest in history

He told the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped conference here that it is no accident that all per capita income, which had been lagging behind other states is now climbing at a faster rate than ever and is now the highest in history.

Pennsylvania is leading the nation in employment of the handicapped, Shafer said, noting that last month the federal government again had congratulated the state for the most successful vocational rehabilitation program among the 50 states. He said some 14,956 persons were rehabilitated, the largest number in the program's history.

John K. Tabor, secretary of Labor and Industry, told the banquet that a "strong working combination of rehabilitation and employment services is the most effective means of equipping the disadvantaged today."

He said: "I believe that in truly serving the needs of the disadvantaged, the welfare system is at best a temporary or stopgap measure and at worst a degrading, miserable curse on mankind."

Tabor said that the $26.6 million Pennsylvania spends on its rehabilitation program pays for itself in addition to being morally rewarding.

He noted that through the combined efforts of the state's bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation, the State Employment Service and other cooperating agencies, 14,091 handicapped persons were able to find jobs in Pennsylvania and earn $61 million in new income.

Ball to leave U.N.; LBJ appoints editor

Nixon presents new image

ST LOUIS (AP) — Republican Richard M. Nixon told 4,800 high school students Thursday that there is a new Nixon, a presidential candidate who represents "the hopes and the aspirations not just of my generation but of yours."

If it were any other way, Nixon said, he would not be a candidate for the White House.

For almost an hour, Nixon answered questions put to him by St. Louis area students who packed the opera house at the Kiel Auditorium.

One boy put this question: "I ask you on behalf of all the young people here, can we look to you for new ideas and understanding leadership as set forth in the new politics?"

"Well," said Nixon, "that question raises the question that perhaps some of you are too polite to raise. And that is, is there a new Nixon... is this just a facade that is put over a man who is really a man of the old politics? Does he really communicate with the young people, does he care?"

"And all that I can say is this: You've got to look at the man, and you've got to answer that question yourselves."

But Nixon said that when a man stops changing, he stops living. He said he has traveled the world since he entered Congress 21 years ago and has talked to young people on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

He said the world has changed and "consequently our policies need to change to meet those new conditions."

"And I believe that through this constant education that I have been receiving by communicating like this with young people that I know what the new world, the new generation wants," Nixon said.

"And if I didn't think that what I stood for represented the hopes and the aspirations not just of my generation but of your generation, I wouldn't be a candidate for president. And if I can't serve that way, I won't be elected—and I think I'm going to win."

HHH: U.S. not world's policeman

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey got the biggest and noisiest welcome of his presidential campaign Thursday and said, "I think in the long run people will believe what we did in South Vietnam was right."

The Democratic vice president talked about his foreign policy views as he moved his California vote-hunt from Los Angeles to Sacramento to San Francisco.

Humphrey, in what was billed as a major foreign policy speech before the Commonwealth Club in San Francisco, said the United States cannot play the role of global gendarme.

"The American people don't want it, and the rest of the world won't accept it," he asserted.

The vice president pledged that if elected president he would do everything in his power to place "international soldiers in peace-keeping areas instead of United States soldiers."

"Nowhere would a United Nations peace-keeping force be more welcome than in Vietnam to administer free elections and verify the withdrawal of foreign troops," he said.

Before arriving to a confetti and ticker tape motorcade—where he was applauded by a generally cheerful crowd but also booed by antiwar hecklers—Humphrey also spoke of his foreign policy beliefs in a Sacramento television interview.

Ball will campaign for HHH

WASHINGTON (AP) — George W. Ball resigned from the U.N. ambassadorship Thursday to campaign for Hubert H. Humphrey, and President Johnson named Washington Post editor J. R. Wiggins to the U.N. job.

Johnson personally emphasized his approval by calling newsmen to the White House Cabinet Room for the surprise announcement. At the same time he said Ball is not quitting out of disagreement with administration foreign policy.

The President praised the "dedicated and distinguished contributions to the public service" by the 58-year-old Ball.

"As you will see from his announcement," Johnson told reporters, Ball's resignation "has nothing to do with public policy but does have something to do with domestic politics."

Ball was simultaneously holding a news conference at the State Department at which he criticized Republican presidential nominee Richard M. Nixon and explained why he is stepping out of the $30,000-a-year ambassadorship to the world organization, to which he was named by Johnson last April.

The president of the United States "must possess 'settled principles and clear vision' plus 'the perception and compassion that will enable him to feel and understand the epic forces at work in a fast-changing world,'" Ball said.

Democratic nominee Humphrey "has those qualities and Richard Nixon lamentably lacks them," said Ball who is to become Humphrey's principal adviser on foreign policy.

As for speculation that he is angling for appointment as secretary of state should Humphrey win election, Ball—a longtime No. 2 man under incumbent Secretary Dean Rusk—declared that "after the November election I shall return promptly to private life."

He added he has told the vice president he wants no role in a Humphrey administration.

Housing, food prices again swing upward

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher housing and food prices in August led a parade of price increases that continued 1968's biggest yearly rise in living costs since the Korean War year of 1951.

The Labor Department, reporting this Thursday, said higher prices for clothing, transportation, medical care and recreation also helped push the government's consumer price index up three-tenths of one percent to 121.9.

Ja-Neen Welch, a part-time model who has an antique shop in Indianapolis, Ind., claimed Thursday she and Presidential Candidate George Wallace plan to get married. Spokesmen for Wallace denied her story.

Blonde enters Wallace's life

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Reports of a romance between George C. Wallace and a shapely blonde campaign worker were described by his headquarters Thursday as "false, untrue" and an attempt to damage his campaign for the presidency.

The statement added that the girl, Ja-Neen Welch, had been dismissed from the campaign force.

The statement came after Miss Welch, who runs an advertising agency in Indianapolis, told reporters she had been traveling "full time" with Wallace in his campaign plane and "I wouldn't object to being the next Mrs. Wallace."

Wallace headquarters said a picture she showed of the former governor with his arm around her shoulder in front of his office here "was made about a month ago at her request just as Gov. Wallace has granted thousands of other requests in recent months."

"During the time she volunteered her services, she was used as a Wallace Girl collecting funds and distributing literature and that was the extent of her involvement," the statement said. It continued, "News-men traveling with the Wallace campaign know this is true."

The statement said Miss Welch's "erratic behavior, including her reports of having visions, extrasensory perception and being a seer," led to the decision to dismiss her.

Earlier Richard Smith, campaign treasurer for the former Alabama governor, told newsmen the candidate's knowledge of Ja-Neen had been limited to "seeing her a couple of times on an airplane."

In Indianapolis, Miss Welch said, "It does not change my feelings toward the governor. I'm still very much in love with him."

She said Wallace aides probably fear "the matter will hurt his vote-getting."

Wallace's wife, Lurleen, who succeeded him as governor of Alabama, died of cancer on May 7.

Miss Welch, once married and the mother of a son, said she was born in Columbus, Ohio, is "part French and Cherokee Indian" and that "people usually use 26 as my age."

She said she met Wallace in Chicago three months ago.

Fortas' opponents claim majority behind filibuster

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's two Supreme Court nominations, caught up in a Senate filibuster, were described by a Republican critic Thursday as "excessive politicking at its worst."

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee added that "the selection of two political cronies for these positions degrades the court, destroys respect for our judicial system, and creates additional lack of confidence among the people of this nation."

Baker held the floor for nearly three hours as the Senate talked its way through the second day of the administration's uphill battle to win confirmation of Abe Fortas as chief justice.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Democratic majority leader, pleaded for a chance to bring the nomination up for a vote, and Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., pictured Fortas as a scapegoat for what Javits termed the Supreme Court's liberal decisions.

Technically the Senate is not even debating the nomination, but is discussing a motion by Mansfield to bring it up for debate. Mansfield has indicated that if the discussion continues he will seek to invoke the Senate's cloture rule to put a time limit on debate.

The majority leader said a cloture petition may be filed today or Saturday. This would clear the way for a showdown vote Monday or Tuesday. Imposing cloture requires a two-thirds majority of the senators voting, and Baker predicted that more than half of the 100 members would vote against cutting off debate.

Javits protested that "an effort to suffocate the nominations through the filibuster is unwarranted and destructive of the national interest."

He noted that through the combined efforts of the state's bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation, the State Employment Service and other cooperating agencies, 14,091 handicapped persons were able to find jobs in Pennsylvania and earn $61 million in new income.

Bartlett seeks new 'vehicle'

HARRISBURG (AP) — Highways Secretary Robert G. Bartlett plugged Thursday for legislative approval of a Shafer administration bill to create a new department of transportation in Pennsylvania.

Such a department, Bartlett told the Senate State Government Committee, could be the "first step toward streamlining our government's efforts to serve the transportation needs of our people."

Bartlett said creation of the department would result in more logical and total planning for the transportation requirements of the state.

It would also be the single agency responsible for recommending transportation projects to the governor and placing the emphasis on each.

Finally, Bartlett concluded, the new department would function similarly to the federal department, which should improve state-federal relations in the field.

"It is a truism...to say that the transportation picture is changing," Bartlett testified. "New concepts and ways of moving people and goods are evolving at an unprecedented rate today."

Bartlett recalled that Gov. Shafer, in a special message to the General Assembly, concluded that the state was not prepared to take its advantage of its geographic location as the transportation hub of the northeast.

Quoting directly from the governor's speech, Bartlett said: "I am convinced that the future of our state rests on how well we plan now to make full use of our great geographic location among the states."

"For we are the 'Hub,' state which means bold and imaginative development of our total transportation network will mean new industry, new jobs, better and healthier metropolitan growth."

"We are not geared in Pennsylvania to take advantage of this opportunity now."

Bartlett noted that the Shafer bill would entail the transfer of some 25,530 state employees to the new department, the major ones being 23,051 from Highways, 1,481 in the Bureau of Motor Vehicles and 504 from the Bureau of Traffic Safety, both in the Revenue Department at present.

Army paying too much for rifles

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special House subcommittee says the price the Army is to pay for M16 rifles in its most recent contracts is unreasonable and should be lowered.

In a report made public Thursday, the special armed services subcommittee on the M16 rifle program said it views the Army awards as an exercise of extremely poor judgment from the standpoint of procurement policy and practice, and in callous disregard of the interests of the taxpayers of the United States.

The subcommittee said the Army did not achieve price competition and, as a result, issued contracts that will cost from $24 million to $30 million more than could have been obtained otherwise.

The subcommittee reopened its investigation of the M16 rifle program last spring after the Defense Department awarded two contracts to produce the M16 rifle to the Hydramatic Division of General Motors, Ypsilanti, Mich., and Harrington and Richardson of Worcester, Mass.

It received congressional complaints that the Marenmont Co., Saco, Maine, was an unsuccessful bidder even though its offer was $20 million lower than that of General Motors' Hydramatic Division. A fourth company considered, Cadillac Gage, Warren, Mich., was prepared to bid $35.8 million.

Hydra-Matic was given one contract with its bid of $56 million; Harrington and Richardson, the other with a bid of $42 million. Each was to produce 240,000 rifles.

Congress has passed legislation to require the Defense Department to solicit and receive price proposals from prospective offerors in negotiated contracts.

The subcommittee said it was not recommending cancellation or adjustment of the production contracts to the two companies because of the need for the additional M16 rifles in Southeast Asia.

High priest?

Southworth Swede, left, 24, of Whittier, Calif., a self-proclaimed "priest" of the East Village hippie "Church of the Mystifying Elation," and his wife, Susan, 22, enter police station for booking early Thursday after authorities raided the "church" and arrested nine "worshippers" and confiscated a narcotics cache estimated worth $10 million on the retail market.

Workmen using pistols make off with $50,000

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Four men got away with $50,000 in a payday holdup Thursday at the Budd Co. employees' federal credit union.

The men, dressed in work clothes, walked into the office Thursday morning, pulled out pistols, and announced a holdup. Before they saw the guns, employees had assumed the men were there to cash pay checks. Thursday was pay day at the Budd Co. and the office had a large sum of cash on hand.

The thieves bound the four credit union employees with two pairs of handcuffs they brought with them. Next, they took $5,000 from each of two tellers' cages and removed $40,000 from a drawer of the office manager's desk, police said.

Manager Elwood Lange said, "It was as if he knew exactly what was there."

Two other Budd employees came in to cash checks while the holdup was in progress.

Shafer sees open housing answer to school busing

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer declared Thursday that open housing rather than school busing provided a more effective and equitable solution to the problem of racial imbalance in Pennsylvania's public school system.

"Open housing is a better answer," Shafer said when questioned on the protests of parents in Northeast Philadelphia against the busing of their children into predominantly Negro schools.

"A basic principle, I prefer to see children go to school in their own neighborhoods. I don't like to see children taken on long bus rides unnecessarily."

Shafer also went into a lengthy review of what six years of Republican rule in Harrisburg has meant for the Negro community.

"There is a greater proportion of Negroes on the state payroll than ever before," he said.

"In addition, many Negro leaders recognize that under a Republican administration they got the finest civil rights package in the country," he continued in recalling the six-bill bipartisan package that passed the General Assembly last year.

Med schools to recruit Negroes

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The deans of Philadelphia's six medical schools have promised to recruit more Negro students, but they say the task will not be a simple one.

The pledge was made Thursday in reply to a demand from the Committee for Black Admissions that Negroes make up one-third of all freshman medical classes next September.

The deans acknowledged a pressing need for "more Negroes and persons with disadvantaged backgrounds in the various professions." However, they pointed out that:

Pennsylvania law forbids questions on race in applications; persons with disadvantaged backgrounds have trouble meeting admission standards and often cannot afford four years of college and medical school and teachers who already are overburdened have little time for special tutoring.

The deans' statement also questioned the justice of denying admission to superior students in favor of less qualified applicants.

Despite the difficulties, said the report, the situation can be improved. The deans have appointed two study groups to confer with students, faculty and community leaders.

Shafer's response came after he was questioned on the proportion of blacks to whites on the Republican State Committee. By GOP count, there are four or five Negroes elected to the 113-man GOP State panel.

Students regret inaction

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Three students said Thursday they regretted not reacting soon enough in their apartment building to the sounds of a struggle apparently the life-or-death battle of a young teacher.

By the time the three acted, the teacher, Alice A. Hayes, 22, was dead of stab wounds in her West Philadelphia apartment Wednesday.

"I don't know what I would have done," said Fred Rosenblum, 20, of Coatesville. "But I would have done something."

"We were trying to wake up, trying to think."

Miss Hayes, leaving behind a trail of blood, crawled from her second-floor apartment. She died outside the door of Rosenblum and his roommate David McAdoo, 20, of Chester Springs and near another apartment occupied by Edwin Olmstead, 21, of Flemington, N.J.

"It's regrettable that we didn't go to the door right away," said McAdoo. "But I don't know whether it would have made any difference."

An autopsy showed Thursday Miss Hayes was stabbed in the back and her lungs were damaged extensively. Police said this was probably why she could not scream loud enough to attract help.

The police said she was attacked, apparently as she slept, in her small bed in her apartment. It was first thought she had been beaten, but the tests showed her injuries were the result of a knife.

Police said they believed her apartment was deliberately singled out by the killer, since only her door showed signs of being tampered with.

McAdoo said when he heard knocking on the door, he said, "Do you hear something?" Rosenblum said he did. The two lay in bed two to four minutes then got up. McAdoo said he opened the door and said, "There's a body out here."

McAdoo said she was knocking on the doors and wall. "We didn't know if it was two people or a drunk," he said. "We were coming out of a deep sleep and it was difficult to comprehend the situation."

"The slate committee is elected by the people," he said. "I don't know how many Negroes ran."

While he conceded that in many instances state committee candidates were slated by individual county leaders, the governor also pointed out:

"It was the Republican Party which was responsible for electing the first Negro (Judge Theodore Spaulding in 1966) to a state Superior Court anywhere in the United States."

Shafer was thrown the normal quota of political questions and he had this to say:

—Published reports about a Shafer-Schweiker rift were "absolutely ridiculous."

—He was optimistic that the Republicans would retain political control of House based on the trend in Pennsylvania as he sees it and the optimistic reports he has received.

Former Bangor Quaker turns in 1-A draft card

EASTON — A 30-year-old Quaker, formerly of Bangor, may face five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine after he turned in his draft card to his Easton Draft Board this week.

George Lakey, who now resides in Philadelphia, has long been an opponent of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

On Wednesday, he actively objected to the war when he appeared before a hearing at Local Draft Board 112 and turned in his draft card which classified him as 1-A.

He personally appeared before the Draft Board Wednesday because "I didn't want to be a file to them as this thing progresses," he explained.

Lakey's hearing lasted 20 minutes. Outside the draft board, a few of the Quaker's supporters which included Lafayette College students, held a small demonstration in support of Lakey's actions.

Previously Lakey was not eligible for the draft since he did two years service with a Philadelphia Quaker group.

An assistant professor of sociology at Martin Luther King School for Social Change at Crozier Theological Seminary in Chester, Lakey has long been active in numerous anti-war demonstrations. He was project director for the voyage of the yacht Phoenix to Vietnam in opposition to American policies.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Lakey of 37 N. Second St., Bangor and a graduate of Bangor Area High School, Lakey said he believes he was classified 1-A because of his personal philosophy.

No economy in congress

With each passing year the United States finds itself deeper in debt and the chances of reducing the size of the deficit more remote.

Thousands of ideas have been forwarded for reducing the deficit and making governmental operations a paying proposition. However, to date, none of the ideas have ever been successful.

There are many reasons for the huge debt, ranging from foreign aid to the cultivation of rattlesnake eggs in Arizona. Much of our tax money is spent in a ridiculous fashion for government projects.

But, the most thoughtless and unwarranted expenditure to our way of thinking is the payment of salaries to Representatives and Senators who make a habit of being absent from their posts in Congress.

There are a number of legislators who have become famous down through the years by the lack of time they have spent about their congressional duties—not by what they have accomplished.

World tours, extended campaigns, vacations, out of town visits and just plain refusing to appear for a vote on a particular piece of legislation are only a few of the reasons for absence.

Why should any member of congress receive payment for services rendered, when he isn't directly serving his government? More time spent at the desk might enable a legislator to spend less time on the campaign trail. Tough campaigns could be caused by poor conduct in the Senate or House of Representatives.

On Tuesday, for example, there were only 188 of 432 members of the House of Representatives on hand to vote for a measure. The Senate did slightly better on the same date, with 67 of 100 members on hand for work.

The Senate actually found itself without a quorum of 51 last Friday and took two and one-half hours to assemble a quorum on Monday.

If each of the legislators were paid on the basis of days worked, the government could salvage a sizeable sum of cash each year and drastically reduce its expenditure.

But, instead of trying to at least find a partial answer to the problem, both the House and Senate will make the truancy legal by approving several long recesses for campaigning.

Economy? Not this year.

Dangerous delay

The Upper Brodhead Creek Watershed Dam project has run into one setback after another over the past seven years.

This much needed project seemed well on its way to reality when the Monroe County Commissioners and Buck Hill Falls Co. came to agreement on land for the construction of one dam last spring.

Negotiations since that time have been underway on property for two additional dams. This part of the project is said to have been falling into place according to schedule.

The project would protect the Canadensis area from floods such as the one that swept over Monroe County in 1955. The Upper Brodhead Watershed Dam project would offer protection that is greatly needed.

However, all types of dam projects in the United States, including the sixth dam in the Greene-Dreher Watershed area, have been brought to a screeching halt by a recent announcement by the United States Soil Conservation Service.

The announcement was made after it was learned that the Agriculture Department is expecting a reduction in its operating budget. In all, 19 dam projects in Pennsylvania were halted by this announcement.

It was learned that no new contracts would be awarded until further notice. This probably means through all of the 1969 fiscal year.

Dam projects would require $56,596,243 to complete in Pennsylvania, with the federal share being $27,703,078.

The Upper Brodhead and Greene-Dreher watershed areas are of the utmost importance to the people of Monroe, Wayne and Pike counties. The construction of these dams must be brought about as soon as humanly possible.

Not only is property damage utmost in our minds, but loss of life is highly possible in the case of flooding.

Soviet planes on prowl

WASHINGTON — Soviet aircraft are reconnoitering North Atlantic Treaty Organization defenses in Great Britain, West Germany and in the Mediterranean.

Since the lightning military invasion of Czechoslovakia, at least a dozen Russian reconnaissance over-flights have been detected by NATO's air defense system and tracked by British and United States interceptors.

Two of the Soviet planes were monitored recently off the East Coast of Canada. Another crashed after photographing a U. S. carrier in the Atlantic.

According to U. S. Intelligence authorities, the ominous over-flights are being carried out by four-engine Russian Bison bombers with special detection services and photographic equipment.

Approach Britain

In their recent flights over NATO's northern defenses, the Soviet bombers approached Great Britain over the North Sea as far as the area of the Faeroes.

As each plane was detected RAF lightning fighters, capable of 1,400 miles per hour were scrambled to identify the intruders. When intercepted the Soviet planes either turned back or went out to sea.

Similar Soviet over-flights were tracked over West Germany and United States naval ships in the Mediterranean during the period Soviet troops were moving to take up positions on the border between Czechoslovakia and West Germany.

The bombers used in the surveillance of units of the U. S. Sixth Fleet came from bases in Egypt. Since early this year, the Russians have rotated more than 20 four-engine Soviet bombers between Egypt and Russia. The flights over West Germany apparently originated directly from the Soviet Union.

World-wide alert

United States Intelligence authorities believe these reconnaissance probes were part of a world-wide alert sounded for Russian forces during the first weeks of the military invasion of Czechoslovakia.

As more details of the Soviet military preparations for the Czech operation become known, American intelligence experts say the alert was ordered to prepare Russian forces for any counter-move.

For instance, the alert also included flights

Don MacLean

Please, don't help!

WASHINGTON — Here it is, the beginning of fall and soon the leaves will wither and die along with the campaign promises.

Yet, most of us have pleasant memories of summer. Most of us, that is, except Rep. Otis G. Pike (D., N.Y.), who has every reason to suspect that the United States Coast Guard is out to get him.

Pike loves to cruise the peaceful waters off Long Island and fish, clam or what-have-you and, ordinarily, he couldn't be more content. The only time panic sets in is when the Coast Guard arrives on the scene.

"Once we were running fast, through the channel between Fisher's Island and Watch Hill. Unfortunately, we hit a lobster pot buoy. It poked a large hole in the bottom of the boat and became wedged there.

"Soon, the Coast Guard arrived on the scene, in answer to calls for help. A Coast Guardsman came on board and, in only a few minutes, he managed to pull the lobster pot out of the hole in the hull. He was still holding it aloft triumphantly as the water rushed in the hole and the boat sank out from under us."

Wrong port

On another occasion Pike's engine quit. Within an hour a Coast Guard boat arrived and, since there were no civilian craft around to help, towed Pike's boat to the nearest port. Sadly, that port had few marine equipment facilities and Pike and his crew were forced to wait there two days for a new part.

The Congressman's last experience with the Coast Guard went like this:

"My brand-new, very, very heavy and expensive battery was found to be without power. After trying without success to get help from private concerns, a nice young Coast Guardsman volunteered to help. He was an Engine Room Second Class, striking for First Class.

"I hope he makes it, he couldn't have been nicer. I'd like to think that all of your tax dollars are as well-spent as the one percent which goes to the Coast Guard. It really wasn't the young Coast Guardsman's fault that, between us, we managed to drop my new, expensive, heavy battery into 12 feet of water. Liberally translated, 'Semper paratus,' the Coast Guard motto, must mean, 'Blessed be those who try to help—even when they bomb.'"

Maybe Rep. Pike should give up motorboating and take up something like kite-flying. Then he could deal with the Federal Aviation Agency rather than the Coast Guard.

Hubert's dwindling crowds seem a bad omen. Yes, that's about the size of it.

When you see someone with tears in his eyes this time of year, you don't know whether he has hay fever or has been listening to politicians' spending programs.

Here's the plan: We get everyone out of the "inner cities" and into the suburbs and then the suburbanites can move back downtown where things are convenient.

Not to be loved

Marx. By Robert Payne. Simon and Schuster. $10.

It would be difficult for anyone, even a hard-line Communist, to feel inspired by the personality of Karl Marx after reading an obviously fair biography which portrays, probably as never before, the all-too-human basis of his character.

Payne, whose interest in the human condition and whose literary versatility have enabled him to write a series of highly readable books on subjects ranging from Albert Schweitzer to Lenin, has achieved the difficult goal of making Marx a credible and very fallible mortal rather than the stereotype titan of world revolution.

With great patience, Payne has caught and buttressed with impressive research the many aspects, often repelling, of his subject. While certainly not a hostile witness, Payne removes the transfiguring disguise of earth-shaking radical and makes him stand on his own far-from-secure legs.

Marx was not a particularly original thinker. Payne finds at least 15 known sources for "The Communist Manifesto." Marx did not even invent the phrase "dictatorship of the proletariat." And his use of "historical materialism" was so subject to vague interpretation that the loyal Friedrich Engels protested its common misapplication.

Although he had a good many loyal friends of whom he was quite fond in his own way, his absolute determination to dominate any movement with which he was connected led him to savage and generally unfair attacks on several whom he normally should have considered close allies — Lassalle and Proudhon, for instance.

'What if' stories

SF 12. Edited by Judith Merril. Delacorte Press. $5.95.

One of the good things about science fiction is that it often comes up with answers to questions that start: "What if . . ."

What if, for example, the Nazis had won World War II?

Hilary Bailey does a good job answering that one with "The Fall of French Steiner," one of 30 items in this uneven collection of science fiction.

Or, what if the dinosaurs had operated in a milieu approximating the manners and morals of contemporary suburbia? Turn the talents of such a line writer as John Updike to that question and the answer appears in "During the Jurassic," a funny little story that really isn't funny at all.

Interested in education? How about a society that doesn't believe in any kid coddling, in fact believes in hanging them if they are very bad, because "small children are not yet entirely human." Such a society is wonderfully detailed in R. A. Lafferty's "The Primary Education of the Camiroi," probably the best story in this collection.

With the exception of "They Do Not Always Remember" by William Burroughs and "The Star-Fit" by Samuel R. Delany, the remaining items are not up to the quality of those already cited. Some are good, some embarrassing, and some just very bad.

Phil Thomas

Formula successful

The Beautiful Couple. By William Woolfolk. World Publishing. $5.95.

The formula has been used quite a few times lately, but it seems to make the cash register ring.

The way it works is this: The setting is the "shocking" back-stage area of the entertainment world. You take a situation a little bit (but not too much) like some real life stories of well-known actresses and actors; that lets the readers guess what people you had in mind, gossip-wise.

You sprinkle erotic scenes, usually anatomically explicit, all through the narrative, and include a couple of orgies. Occasionally you throw in an aberration — a dash of homosexuality, a bit of incest. It makes quite a combination.

This time the story is about Brian and Jacquelyn, a husband and wife team who have made some sexy box-office movies together. But now they are on the verge of divorce.

Brian, an Irishman of prodigious sexual prowess, is in London with his latest young mistress (and a few casual pickups), making a really serious movie; he wants to be an actor, not just a sex symbol.

Despairing, Jacquelyn accepts a bid to make a movie epic in Brazil, encouraged by a current millionaire lover — though she isn't quite sure she wants to marry him after the divorce from Brian goes through.

The narrative gets into some pretty silly sequences, several of the plot switches are quite corny, and the writing is comparable. But the book gives the customer 374 pages of the currently successful formula for sex novels.

Miles A. Smith

Detective genius

Incredible Detective. By Gene Caesar. (Prentice-Hall $5.95).

About the founder of the William J. Burns International Detective Agency, a remarkable investigator hailed by The New York Times as "perhaps . . . the only detective of genius whom the country has produced."

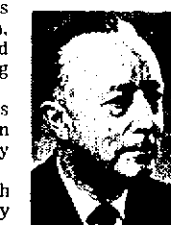

Burns achieved renown, first as an operative for the government and later on his own account, in a day when a detective had to depend largely on his own ingenuity. Fingerprints and crime laboratories were unknown, and cooperation among federal, state and local police agencies was limited.

His feats in tracking down counterfeiters, exposing grafters and swindlers and solving such celebrated cases as the bombing of the Los Angeles Times Building put his name on front pages all over the country.

In his heyday, Burns was often compared to Sherlock Holmes, but the hero of detective fiction he most closely resembled was Arthur Crock. He was a short, stocky man with red hair, an affable extrovert who looked more like a traveling salesman than Conan Doyle's gaunt, keen-eyed detective.

Unity initial move

WASHINGTON — The next president of the United States will move at the highest level to gain what the nation most needs—unity.

His first step will be to surround himself with a broadly based, bipartisan cabinet.

This decision has already been made separately by both Richard Nixon and Hubert Humphrey.

Both are looking beyond the election to how they can best govern—and with good reason. They are giving a good deal of thought to the kind of cabinet which would help them govern more effectively. Their independent approaches agree in one essential:

That if Nixon is elected there will be outstanding Democrats in the cabinet; that if it's Humphrey there will be outstanding Republicans in the cabinet.

Public trust

The overriding reason is to enable the new administration to establish the widest basis of public trust. Both presidential nominees feel that one way to dissolve the deep differences in the nation is to show that the political parties are prepared for the national good to mute their own differences at the highest level of government.

Nixon and Humphrey are as one on the desirability—even the necessity—of taking this unusual but not unprecedented step.

The plan for a bipartisan cabinet is not ivory-tower politics. It is practical politics. It springs from these compelling circumstances:

1—The lacerating divisions in the United States will not disappear just because we have elected a new president. Peace in Vietnam will not come overnight. Violence will continue near the surface in the city ghettos; tension between black and white, between rich and poor will also plague the next administration.

This means that partisan politics—as usual—simply will not be adequate to govern during the next four years. The problem which Franklin D. Roosevelt faced in 1940—to meet the mounting peril of Hitler's aggressions—was easy compared to the trials which will confront Nixon or Humphrey. But to insure national unity, Roosevelt put two leading Republicans — Henry Stimpson and Frank Knox—into his Cabinet.

2—It is now a virtual certainty that the candidate elected this November will be a minority president. Because the popular vote will be divided between Nixon, Humphrey and Wallace, the outlook now is that the next president may not get much over 40 per cent popular vote. Thus he would take office with about 60 per cent of the nation preferring someone else.

President Kennedy wisely responded to the narrowness of his election by recognizing that in order to win wider public confidence he would need a bipartisan cabinet, and in consequence he chose Republicans as secretary of the treasury and secretary of defense. The need for Nixon or Humphrey to do something similar will be even greater—and they are well aware of it.

3—The next president will need maximum leverage with congress. The Democrats will control the Senate and the Republicans may control the House. In any event, it will be a Congress which will be pretty much intent upon showing its independence of the White House, and any minority president, as was the case with JFK, will be in for a hard time. A bipartisan cabinet, which embraces some leaders of stature from the other party, will give the president added credentials with the country and with the congress.

These are the main reasons both Nixon and Humphrey have decided that a bipartisan cabinet is needed from the standpoint of practical politics and will be a valuable instrument for national unity. Each is also intent upon commanding the best brains and experience he can get, and to do that he is prepared to draw his cabinet from both parties.

That's good.

Ann Landers

Martyr type

Dear Ann Landers: May I say a word to New York Dilemma, the woman whose husband suffered "a small stroke" and now demands all her time and attention? It happened to my father, or I should say to my mother. Although it was father who had the "small stroke," it was mother who died from it.

For 14 years mother waited on him hand and foot—"get me this...bring me that...I'm ready for my bath now...I'd like some hot tea." Mother pushed him around the house in a converted kitchen chair because he hated the idea of being in a wheel chair.

The first year Mother lost 15 pounds (which father gained). She left the house only to bring in groceries or to do father's errands. Her social life was zero. She dropped out of the bridge club, the church circle—everything. She couldn't even have visitors to the house because father was always needing something.

Mother died last year—a blessed and welcome release from her slavery. Father is still alive—in a convalescent home. If I knew 15 years ago what

I know now, I would have insisted that Mother get a "sitter" for Father two afternoons a week and an evening or two as well. His stroke was slow death for her.

BITTER
Dear Bitter: The "slow death" you described was more than just exploitation by a sick and selfish person. It would not have occurred had your mother not been a martyr type who was willing to allow it.

Ann, Baby: Your column is a gas. Sometimes I cry my eyes out. Other times I bust up laughing. But those cutesy wootsy names like Bub, Buster, Buddy Boy, Cupcake and Lamb Chop detract from your otherwise sensible advice. So, knock it off, will you, Doll? Some of your correspondents are twice your age and you ought to be more respectful.

ARCHIE
Dear Archie: Thanks. I'll watch it, honeybun.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 35. My husband is 37. We are professional people and have a six-year-old daughter. We both feel that perhaps Ruth should have a little brother or sister. She is unusually precocious and somewhat spoiled. Frankly, I am less enthusiastic about a second child than my husband. While he has said he doesn't care one way or the other, I suspect he would be pleased if he had a son.

We agreed to leave it up to Ruth and yesterday we asked her how she would like to have a baby sister or brother. She made it clear that she doesn't want a new baby in the house and has threatened to run away if we "surprised" her with one. What is your opinion, Ann?

IN DOUBT
Dear In: A couple who would let a six-year-old decide whether or not to have another child is in a bad way. I'm afraid you may already have more than you can handle.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents...if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Injured but not requiring immediate treatment was Dennis E. Eagles, 25, of Scranton. He suffered face injuries.

Pastel floral theme set for Hummel-Steinmetz rites

SHAWNEE — The century-old Shawnee Presbyterian Church was the setting September 7 for the wedding of Miss Sherrie L. Steinmetz to Howard G. Hummel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hummel of Bangor, R.D. 5.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Heller, Sr., of East Stroudsburg, R.D. 2.

The Rev. Frank Wingerter performed the double-ring candlelight ceremony at 4 p.m. before an altar decorated with vases of white pom-pom chrysanthemums. While satin bows marked the pews.

Mrs. Eleanor Bender, organist played a medley of nuptial melodies and accompanied soloist Leonard Kranendonk of Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians. Kranendonk sang "The Lord's Prayer" and several of the bride's favorite selections.

Given in marriage by her step-father, the bride was attired in a gown of white crepe with a jewel neckline and bracelet-length sleeves. Daily appliques outlined the chapel train and the bell-sleeves. A crown of aurora crystal iridescents held her scalloped shoulder-length veil of imported French illusion. She carried a cascade arrangement of white pom-pom chrysanthemums surrounding a white orchid. A birthstone ring, the gift of the bridegroom, completed her attire.

Miss Joann Miller of Stroudsburg and Miss Donna Del Prior of Washington, D.C. were maids of honor. They wore matching Roman-style gowns of crepe which had floral print bodices of pink, blue and green,

Mr. and Mrs. Howard G. Hummel

and skirts of pink crepe. Each carried a bouquet of pink pom-poms. Their coiffures were styled in Grecian curls with flowers tucked into the curls.

Miss Madelyn Baxter of East

Stroudsburg, R.D. 2; Miss Melanie Storozuk of Youngstown, Ohio, and Miss Teresa Hanson of Emporium, were bridesmaids. Each was attired in a gown of crepe in a Roman-style and carried pom-poms. Miss Baxter's entire ensemble was in blue. Miss Storozuk's in yellow and Miss Hanson's in green. Each young woman had matching color flowers in their Grecian-styled coiffures.

Miss Renee Jagers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Jagers of Sweet Fern Rd., Stroudsburg, niece of the bridegroom, was junior bridesmaid. Her ensemble matched those worn by Miss Miller and Miss Del Prior.

Miss Vanessa Jagers, sister of the junior bridesmaid, wore a floor-length white crepe gown and carried rose petals and white pom-poms in a basket.

Ring-bearer was James Hummel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hummel of Bangor, nephew of the bridegroom. He carried a heart shaped white satin pillow on which the wedding bands were tied with bows.

David Parsons of Bangor served as best man. Ushers were Raymond Jagers, brother-in-law of the bridegroom; David Hummel and Earl Hummel, brothers of the bridegroom, both of Bangor; Edwin G. Steinmetz, Jr., of Pittsburg, brother of the bride, and John Graver of Stroudsburg.

Mrs. Heller chose a green A-line dress of green crepe with a matching green lace coat and green accessories for her daughter's wedding. She was presented with a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Hummel wore a blue dress and matching accessories and also received a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Clarence B. Dickson, Sr., of Stroudsburg, the bride's maternal grandmother wore a blue dress with a matching coat of lace and received a corsage of white carnations.

The bride's paternal grandmother, Mrs. Lester Steinmetz of Bangor, wore a green and white print dress and received a white carnation corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception for 150 guests was held at the Pen 'N' Sword Restaurant, East Stroudsburg. The bridal table was decorated with white carnations and pom-poms, centered with a five-tier wedding cake, trimmed with white roses.

Music for dancing was provided by Ronnie and the Revelations.

Manor guests honored on birthdays

Red and pink dahlias decorated the tables for the party.

New dimension for Garden Club

STROUDSBURG — A new dimension in geriatric care was discussed for members of the Monroe County Garden Club at a recent meeting in the Stroudsburg YMCA. Guest speaker was Eduard E. Liebel, administrator of Cherry Valley Convalescent Home.

Born in Vienna and educated in the Sacred Heart School of Nursing in Canada, Liebel said he was impressed by Dr. Albert Schweitzer when he met the great medical missionary. "He had a great feeling of contentment," Liebel said.

He described the optimum atmosphere for a nursing home, which he said, should be homelike, clean and attractive with understanding care, quiet and respect for the guests and also have an awareness of the community's needs.

Liebel pointed out, "When one cannot be left alone, is not able to even cook, or has lost his loved ones, that person needs help. As one gets older, he fears and loneliness comes upon him."

In his remarks, the administrator asked the audience how often they had ever seen someone crippled or blind receive aid when crossing the street. The air of uneeling by the general public was described. This apathy, he said, generated the results of what convalescent homes are or are not in a community.

Liebel noted, "Out of 90 million people over the age of 65, approximately 6 or 7 per cent need convalescent care. These people need visits and encouragement."

Discussing the moral responsibility of caring for the convalescent, Liebel told the group that he takes his guests to watch bowling; to shop in local stores; to see the circus and visit restaurants.

Accompanying the administrator were three of his guests, Mrs. Clementine Mervine, Mrs. James Jacobs and Mrs. Laura Hallet.

He summed up his philosophy in his concluding remark, "No money in the world could repay what I get out of it, and my staff feels the same way."

Mrs. Harold Lanterman, president, welcomed Mrs. Charles Kleinhoff as a new member. Miss Aida Banks was a guest of the club.

Floral arrangements were exhibited by Mrs. William Dievier, Mrs. A. Starr Phelps, Margaret and Rose Nils, Mrs. James E. Shafer, Mrs. Lanterman, Mrs. John V. Robertson, Mrs. George T. Walker, Mrs. Frank P. Ervery, and Mrs. Harold L. Gawe.

Fruit arrangements were displayed by Mrs. George M. Rung, which included the largest cantalope from her garden and largest apple from their tree. Dried flowers in small frames were displayed by pupils of Arlington Heights School.

Mrs. Leonard Hippler, hospitality chairman designed a centerpiece of early fall flowers in a tureen on a 100-year-old platter, for the refreshment table. Her committee included Mrs. Robert Garret, Mrs. Arthur Widmer and Mrs. Charles L. Frank.

Erma Bombeck

Incentive key word

(This is the ninth in a 10-part series excerpted from the book "At Wit's End," by Erma Bombeck.)

Several years ago, I discovered the real keyword to housecleaning was incentive. I was a fool not to have realized it before. There had to be a reason for cleaning house. At our place, the motivation seems to center about one word — party.

When we can no longer "dig out," we simply announce to 20 or 30 of our most intimate friends, we are going to entertain.

Then we swing into action. My husband knocks out a wall or two, gives the baseboards that long-promised second coat, changes the furnace filter, replaces light bulbs where there has been no light for five years, squirts glazing compound into holes and wall cracks, and hot-mops the driveway.

"Clean attic day" The day after the party is always designated "Clean the attic day." After considerable effort, my husband speaks, "Let me begin by saying that you can't be illogical or sentimental about this stuff."

"Well, that's pretty pompous coming from a man who still has his Jack Armstrong signet ring, a book of shoe stamps from World War II, and his first bow wow!"

"Those are collector's items," he explains. "That's different. I'm talking about junk. Right now, we are going to establish a rule of thumb for saving things."

We sit down on a carton marked "Rain-soaked Halloween masks." "Now," he continues, "if we can't wear it, frame it, sell or, hang it on the Christmas tree, out it goes! Understand?"

At the end of two hours we haul four pitiful items to the curb: a broken hula hoop, an airline calendar showing Wiley Post spinning a propeller, an empty varnish can, and one tire chain.

"This is ridiculous," he growls, crawling back into the attic. "Let's take this stuff one by one. What's this?"

"That's our summer cabin inventory."

"What summer cabin?"

"The one we're going to buy someday. So far, we have a studio couch, a lamp with a bowling pin base, six Shirley Temple cereal bowls, two venetian blinds, and a chair with a rope seat."

"And this?" he sighs.

"That's my motherhood insurance. They're all my old maternity clothes, bottle sterilizer, potty chair, layettes, baby bed, and car seat. You lay a hand on this stuff and we'll both live to regret it."

"And all this trash?"

"That belongs to you. Consecutive license plates from 1937, old fertilizer bags, a rusted sickle, a picture of the Cincinnati Reds autographed by Bucky Walters, the medical dictionary wrapped in a plain, brown paper, cartons of English quizes from the class of 1853, eighteen empty anti-freeze cans, a box marked 'Old Furnace Filters' and a bait box that is trying to tell us something."

"That is touching," said my husband, "but what are we going to do with all this trash?"

RFK group owes $3.5 million

NEW YORK (AP) — The campaign committee for the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy still owes $3.5 million, a source has said.

The debt is mostly for transportation and communication arising from presidential primary campaigns in Indiana, Nebraska, South Dakota, Oregon, California and the District of Columbia, the source said.

Medicare increases deductible amount

EASTON — Beginning in January an older person who goes to the hospital under Medicare will be responsible for the first $44 of his hospital bill — now running about $600 for the average hospital stay by a Medicare beneficiary. Edward P. Sullivan, social security district manager of Easton, said.

The four-dollar increase (from the present $40 deductible) results from a provision in the law requiring an annual review of the deductible amount. The first such review the law provided, was to be made in 1968.

The law specifies that if this annual review shows that hospital costs have changed significantly, the hospital deductible amount must be adjusted for the following year. Necessary increases in the deductible amount are to be made in four-dollar steps to avoid small annual changes.

Following the formula in the law, and figuring the ratio of inpatient hospital costs under Medicare in 1966 with those in 1967, the deductible amount for 1969 worked out to $45.36. Rounded to the nearest multiple of four dollars, this will make the deductible $44 for 1969.

The results of the annual review of the inpatient hospital deductible also apply to the dollar amounts a Medicare beneficiary pays toward a hospital stay of more than 60 days, or a posthospital extended care stay of more than 20 days.

These amounts therefore will also increase by 10 per cent, effective Jan. 1 — to $11 a day for the first through the 90th day of a hospital stay; to $5.50 for the 91st to the 180th day of a stay in a posthospital extended care facility; and to $22 a day for each day of the lifetime reserve of 60 days. The reserve account a beneficiary can draw upon if he ever needs more than 90 days of hospital care in the same benefit period.

BAD CASE: (Q.) I met a girl a year ago at a conference. She hit me so hard that I made a complete ass of myself. I acted so silly that she as much as told me, "Drop dead, Charlie!"

I tried to forget her all year. I thought I had until this year's conference. Oh, what joy it was when I saw her again. But I tried not to pester her.

I'm dying inside. I even see her when she's not there. I don't think I can live until next year's conference.

I'm 16, take part in all sports, and am very popular and active at my school. But this is killing me.

—A Reader in Spokane, Wash.

A. Your case is normal except that your fever is higher than usual. High fever can give you delusions. When the fever dies down you will see the facts more clearly. You caught the bug, she didn't.

Get interested in another girl—one who can get interested in you. Life is too short for one-way, long-distance longing.

FAT POCKET: (Q.) I have big hips and legs and a pocket of fat just above my knees. My small waist accents my faults even more.

B. In Tulsa, Okla. A. Show off your small waist to hide the bigness below it. A snug belt will draw eyes to your little waist. A full skirt will cover your hips and other things.

For casual wear, a pants suit or pants-and-tunic would be great cover-up.

French Communists fighting off crisis

PARIS (AP) — France's potent Communist movement, shaken by recent events in France and Czechoslovakia, is wrestling with one of its most serious crises since World War II.

The party claims a quarter million members and has been commanding a million votes in national elections. It has been a bellwether and powerful influence in European communism. Now its leadership, under Secretary-general Waldeck Rochet, is beset by a variety of problems.

Internally, the French student revolt of May and June caught the party unprepared and brought it severe embarrassment. This in turn contributed to ideological division in the ranks between those standing ostensibly for "peaceful" conquest of power and those impatiently advocating violent revolutionary action.

Then the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia compounded the confusion and added to the divisions. Party leaders found themselves obliged to criticize the Russians sharply and publicly.

The French party finds itself with a tiny but noisily pro-

Chinese minority on the extreme left, elements on the right who resist Soviet direction, and those in the middle seeking to steer a safe course through the reefs.

It took 10 years for the French Communists to recover from the shock after Russian tanks crushed the Hungarian revolution of 1956. In that period, Rochet repeatedly stood publicly for the "peaceful road" as the only practical policy in France. He worked to build the party into one with a respectable front which could attract the non-Communist left.

Thus, the party rejected a call for a general strike during the student rebellion. That was one reason why it sustained a severe loss. The nation, without Communist leadership of labor, was paralyzed by an enormous strike wave over which the party had no control.

Much of Rochet's work after 1956 thus has gone down the drain. His party faces a number of difficult tasks.

The Communists may try to convince young members, who were all for violence in May and June, that the party really remained revolutionary while criticizing their upheaval. The leadership must convince the mass of Frenchmen, at the same time, that they do not stand for the overthrow of the De Gaulle regime by force, even though they had belatedly tried to move in on the student uprising.

They must try to convince the non-Communist left that they do not take orders directly from the Kremlin. They must make up their minds where they stand on Moscow's projected international Communist conference, which most European Communist leaders seem to view as another incipient disaster for the movement.

Viet Gls increase looting

SAIGON (AP) — Looting by Vietnamese troops, especially by some elite units, appears to have increased significantly in recent months, further alienating the army from those it is sworn to protect.

Since the war began Vietnamese troops have stolen chickens, pigs and other food to supplement meager field rations.

Now some units spend a good part of their time in the field systematically taking anything of value from whatever homes they come across.

Recently a Vietnamese marine battalion operating on the fringe of a provincial capital in strongly pro-government suburb looted the village chief's home while the official stood by helplessly.

Those who have watched the Vietnamese troops in action for a number of years date the beginning of serious looting—as opposed to stealing food—to the Tet offensive, when the war moved into the cities.

Troops from peasant homes got a good look at the way Vietnamese were living in urban areas and decided to raise their own standard of living a bit.

Bulk loading headache for Philadelphia port

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia port area is losing business to other East Coast ports because it cannot handle commodities in pre-packed vans.

A report released Wednesday states major shipping lines have cut back service to Philadelphia because the port has not kept up with the competition in meeting the challenge of containerization.

The new system, already well established in many of the world's trade centers, allows ten tons of cargo to be packed into a single trailer. The trailers are loaded directly onto ships. At their destination, the vans can be hauled along highways, by rail, or stored at waterfront terminals.

The reduction in shipping can be checked, says the report, if Philadelphia takes immediate steps to put the port into the race for container cargoes.

America's beauty queen starts travel

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Still a tomboy at heart, Judith Anne Ford left Wednesday for the start of a year of travel and personal appearances as Miss America 1969.

Since winning the title two weeks ago, Judi—as she likes to be called — has been in New York for wardrobe fittings, interviews and sightseeing. Now the work begins.

Her first visit takes her to Niagara Falls, then to the Philadelphia area. By the time she returns next September to crown her successor she will have traveled an estimated 200,000 miles.

"So far it's more fun than work," remarked Judi, an 18-year-old green-eyed blonde. But she said she missed "not having a lot of kids my age around."

She said she was looking forward to her first trip home and seeing her friends and family.

Judi, who represented her home state of Illinois in the pageant, will be in Aurora, Ill., Oct. 28 to crown the new Miss Illinois. Then it's home to Belvidere and a homecoming parade Oct. 30.

Miss America and her chaparrone and constant traveling companion, Irene Bryant of Overland Park, Kan., arrived here from New York City for a brief visit to pageant headquarters where the beauty queen met newsmen.

Judi wore a bright green dress with three-quarter-inch sleeves and tie belt, set off with matching pin and earrings.

A trampoliner artist, she said the day after winning the title she preferred cutoff blue jeans and sweatshirts to evening gowns. "That's all in the past," she said, although admitted to still being a tomboy at heart.

The toughest part about being Miss America, she remarked, was getting up every morning and putting on makeup and fixing her hair.

'69 Chevy Nova Coupe

1969 Nova with Torque-Drive. You won't clutch at its price.

Other economy cars may act more modest than Nova but then, they have more to be modest about.

We've done the type of things to the '69 Chevy Nova that you'd expect only from more expensive cars.

Like freshening up its already sporty appearance; Front.

Side.

And rear.

Like making the instrument panel design smarter, richer.

Like putting on new fanned front brake drums.

But we don't rest Nova's case on looks and ride alone.

There's the rest it can give your left foot with exclusive Torque-Drive transmission. Torque-Drive action eliminates the clutch pedal and almost all shifting.

You just flick the lever from 1st to Hi, and that's it. No clutching ever.

What does this boon to stop-and-go driving cost?

The price is low enough for you to be able to put your left foot in permanent retirement. And you can order it for any 4- or 6-cylinder model.

If you were comparing Chevy Nova with other economy cars, now you know.

There's no comparison.

Your Chevrolet dealer awaits.

The bidding:

Pass 3 Pass 4

Opening lead — queen of diamonds.

Here is another hand from the Canada-Kenya match on which Kenya distinguished himself by exceptionally fine play.

Murray was North and Kehela South for Canada when they reached four hearts on the bidding shown. West led the queen of diamonds. East overtook with the king and continued with the ace, which South ruffed.

Playing as though he could see through the backs of the cards, Kehela cashed the A-K of trumps, entered dummy with a spade, ruffed the nine of diamonds, cashed the A-K of clubs, and put East on lead with a club.

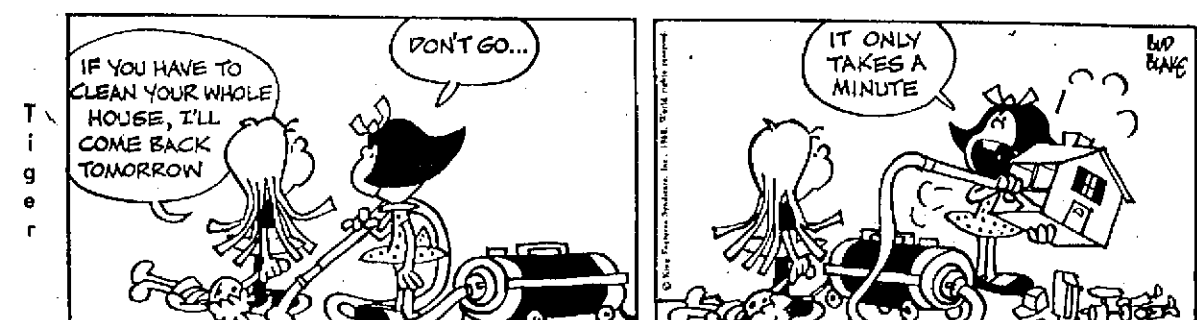

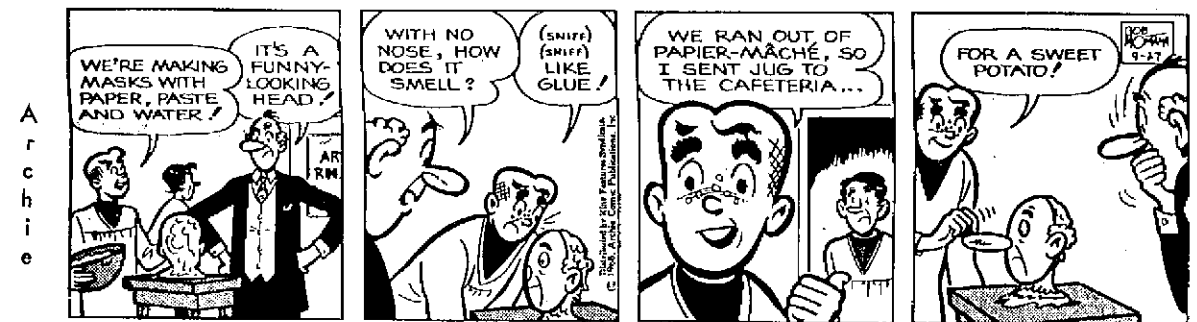

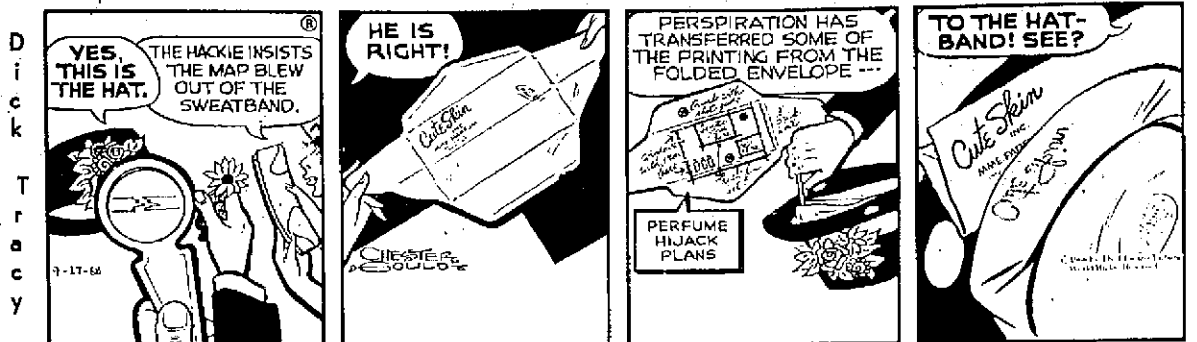

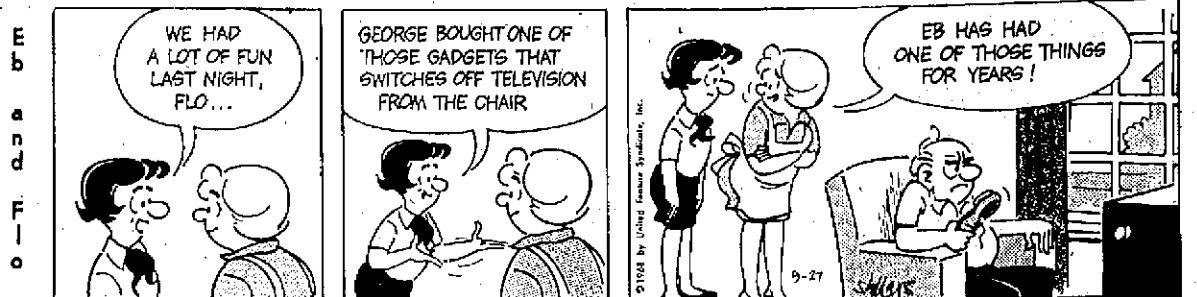

East won with the jack and cashed his high trump, but with only the Q-9-5 of spades left in his hand, he had to return a spade. Kehela went up with the jack. As a result of this well-conceived endplay, he made the contract for a score of 420 points.

There were subtle inferences that led Kehela to adopt the method of play. It seemed highly likely that East would not overtake the queen of diamonds at trick one unless he had three diamonds to the A-K.

Starting with this as a base, and proceeding on the assumption that hearts and clubs would both be divided 3-2, Kehela set his sights on an endplay against East as the most likely method of escaping the spade loser that would otherwise sink the contract.

The Kenya declarer in the same contract at the other table was not presented with the same opportunity to shine. West (Elliott, playing with Sheardown) chose the three of spades as his opening lead and South properly decided that his best chance for the contract was that West had led from the queen.

Accordingly, he played low from dummy and went down one when he eventually lost a trick in each suit. As a result, Canada picked up 470 points on the deal.

Helicopter carrier in operation

Russia building powerful naval force

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chief of Naval Operations, says the Soviet Union's first helicopter carrier is operating in the Mediterranean and is "visible evidence of Russia's announced intention to become a modern major offensive seapower."

The new 650-foot ship, named Moskva, arrived in the Mediterranean via the Dardanelles Straits during the weekend escorted by two destroyers.

Navy men view her arrival as a significant step in a Soviet naval buildup in an area once dominated solely by the U.S. Sixth Fleet.

The admiral said in an interview:

"I think the real significance of the Moskva's deployment is not so much in the fact that she gives the Soviet navy a new capability, but rather that she is a manifestation of the continuing effort on the part of the Soviets to deploy a modern force into all of the oceans of the world."

The admiral didn't say so but there has been speculation the Moskva's deployment was timed to give Egypt moral support during a period of new tension with Israel.

The Soviet Union has more than quadrupled its fleet of military ships in the Mediterranean since the two Mideast countries went to war in June 1967. She has about 40 vessels in the area, compared with 55 to 60 for the United States.

U.S. intelligence credits the Moskva with the ability to haul as many as three dozen helicopters, but no jet fighters.

Moorer, answering questions about the ship's military significance, said the Moskva gives the Soviets "a mobile helicopter platform which we must assume is capable of landing Russian naval infantrymen from the sea as well as conducting antisubmarine warfare from the air."

The naval infantrymen Moorer referred to are Moscow's so-called "black berets," an elite force activated by the Soviets in 1964 as an answer to the U.S. Marine Corps.

Navy men emphasized the Moskva in no way compared with the big American aircraft carriers which haul squadrons of tactical jet fighters and bombers off Mediterranean shores.

According to best estimates she displaces from 23,000 to 25,000 tons, and is lightly armed, while U.S. attack carriers range up to 85,000 tons and carry heavy armament.

The rear half of the ship provides the only "flat-top" or flight deck space.

'Brotherhood' theme of ESSC homecoming

EAST STROUDSBURG — "Brotherhood, Keystone of Democracy" has been chosen as the theme for East Stroudsburg State College's Homecoming 68 weekend.

The two day affair begins on Friday, Oct. 4, with the traditional crowning of the homecoming queen, bonfire, and pep rally at 7:30 p.m. This is to be followed by the Fall Variety Show starting at 8:30 p.m. in the Koehler Field house Swimming Area.

Saturday's festivities include a variety of scheduled events. The highlights of the day include a 10 a.m. soccer game pitting small college powerhouses ESSC and Trenton State.

At noon a float parade will proceed through East Stroudsburg with many of the college student organizations displaying their interpretation of the Brotherhood theme.

The ESSC Warrior football team will take on Kutztown State's gridirons on the college field at 2 p.m. and trophies will be awarded to the top floats at halftime. The climax of the weekend will be a Homecoming Dance, for both students and alumni, to be held in the gymnasium at 8:30 p.m.

Plans for the weekend of activity held for present students and the alumni were made by a committee of students and faculty. Student members included Joe Rompala of Meshoppen and Gil Rogers of Endicott, N.Y. of Sigma Pi Fraternity; Merv Heller, Reading, of Alpha Chi Fraternity; William Eynon of Scranton and Derryl Herman, Lehigh, of Tau Kappa Epsilon; and William Glazerman, Philadelphia, of Phi Sigma Kappa. Robert Fulmer, Tamaqua, spoke for the Men's Executive Council and Lynne Fitzgerald was the student representative for the Fall Variety Show.

'Lollipop' variety show at ESSC

EAST STROUDSBURG — As part of Homecoming '68 on Oct. 4 and 5 at East Stroudsburg State College, a Fall variety show will be held in Koehler Fieldhouse by a talented section of the student body.

Working under the theme "The Good Ship Lollipop," the show will include gymnastics, synchronized swimming, modern dance, Scottish Highland dances, clown divers, singing and several other means of entertainment.

Miss Catherine O'Brien and Mrs. Mary B. Dear are the faculty advisors for the two-night performance.

Friday show will begin at 8:30 p.m., after the crowning of the Homecoming Queen and Saturday's is scheduled to begin at 7:15 p.m. Admission is 50 cents for students and one dollar for adults.

In the past, the annual presentation has had considerable success and drew large crowds for every performance. The diversity of the program lends itself to a very enjoyable evening of entertainment.

China lecture feature

EAST STROUDSBURG — Sidney Goldsmith, a Foreign Service officer of the U.S. State Department will be the speaker at a special program at East Stroudsburg State College today.

To be held in the second floor hall of the Koehler Fieldhouse at 3 p.m., the lecture is being sponsored by the liberal arts division of the Social Studies Department headed by Dr. Kurt Wimer.

"China: As Seen from Hong Kong" will be the subject of Goldsmith's address. Although he is speaking directly to a scheduled class, Goldsmith's talk is being opened to all students and interested members of the public who wish to attend. There is no charge. Dr. Wimer said that Mr. Goldsmith was an observer during the recent Hong Kong riots and a part of his responsibilities include that of observing Chinese reactions to Hong Kong incidents and events.

Man seeking car damages

STROUDSBURG — John V. Gargone, 207 S. Webster St., Scranton, filed a complaint Thursday in the Monroe County Courthouse against Samuel C. Everett, Cresco, asking for a judgement of $822.

The complaint states that Gargone was driving south on Rte. 611 and was approaching the intersection of Grange Road and Everett was driving north on Rte. 611. Everett attempted to make a right-hand turn into Grange Road and his car spun out of control, crossed into the southbound lane and struck Gargone's car, it is alleged.

Funds for land acquisition

Soil service signs flood control contract

STROUDSBURG — The State has signed a contract with the Monroe County Soil Conservation Service for its 25 per cent cost share in the land acquisition for the three flood-control dams proposed in the upper Broadhead Creek watershed, it was announced during the regular meeting of the Soil and Water Conservation District Wednesday night.

(Related story, page 13)

Arlington (Bud) Martin, county commissioner-director, reported on the progress of the Broadhead Creek project and said that county engineer Edward Hess has completed the property and flood easement survey for Buck Hill Falls property and will start on others.

When completed, the actual purchase of land easements will follow with anticipated completion in March 1969.

John Eckes, SCS work unit conservationist, explained to members and cooperators that the recent federal budget cutback will not affect the work of the SCS in this county as much as it will in other areas.

"This will not be a permanent thing and for us it affects administration, a cutback of personnel. It shouldn't affect the Broadhead Creek project since we're not ready to construct but it will in places like the Mauch Chunk and Greene-Dreher projects," Eckes said.

Jacob Kintz, district forester, reported on a recent survey of the Delaware Forest District which includes Monroe and Pike counties.

Light to medium cases of defoliation were reported for 62,400 acres infested by oak leaf roller which affects red and white oak; 31,680 for the Saddle Prominent caterpillar which affects beech, birch and maple.

Kintz said it would be up to the department of agriculture to evaluate the seriousness of the problem and if it demands a control program. The infestation could subside by the following year or it could get more destructive.

Kintz also gave warning that this is fall fire season.

Ernest Taylor, reporting for the State Game Commission said that for the game stocking program, more than 1,000 pheasants were released recently, ratio of 75 per cent cocks to 25 per cent hens. An additional 500 cock birds will be stocked prior to the season and two more in-season stocks of 130 birds each will be made. Turkeys will be stocked later.

Taylor also announced that a certified Hunter Safety Course will be conducted by the Game Commission on Saturday, Oct. 5 in the auditorium at Pocono Mountain High School. This will be open to the county residents, from 11 years of age and older. The course will become mandatory by law effective September 1, 1969.

Eckes announced that the "Flaming Foliage" Conservation Air Tour is set for Saturday, Oct. 21, and will include a 20-minute flight over the central and western part of the county. This is open to the county.

New cooperators approved were: Pennsylvania National Guard for 12 acres in Hamilton township; Arthur Roll for 10 acres in Middle Smithfield Township; Walter Burke for 70 acres in Pocono Township; Carl Forth, eight acres, Middle Smithfield; Vincent Mosconi, 481 acres in Tunkhannock Township.

PV board discusses bus routes

BRODHEADSVILLE — Pleasant Valley School Board members discussed the question of providing door-to-door bus transportation for all pupils in the district during the regular board meeting Thursday night but came to no final agreement after considering many factors.

The discussion was prompted by parental requests for the bus situation for four children to be picked up directly at their home for safety reasons. The additional cost was determined at 90 cents per day. The board accepted the request.

Director Joseph Decker pointed out that the board will have to honor all individual parental requests as well as to be fair and argued that this was in contradiction to the previous rule the board set where pupils were required to walk to a pick up point.

John Rinker, president, said he would like to see that eventually all pupils have door-to-door pick-up. Several members pointed out that there are problems in establishing perfect school bus transportation in the system as it is now established and would require a study of time limitation, especially in providing the service for all kindergarten pupils as well.

Decker entered his motion to consider door-to-door transportation for all the four townships in the 1969-70 budget but it was not carried.

A second request for transportation was made by George Andrusin, Chestnut Hill elementary principal for two emotionally disturbed pupils which will have to go for special classes at the Barrett Elementary Center. Several choices were discussed. One suggestion was to meet a Pocono Mountain Bus at Neola, another to use the Pocono Central Catholic bus from Kresgeville or to solicit private transportation.

The board authorized the administration to negotiate immediately for the best possible way of transporting the two pupils and submit for board approval. The pupils in the meantime will be furnished transportation.

Decker questioned the action of the Athletic Council and its decision to maintain that teachers only will take receipts during sporting events. According to Decker, some form of agreement had been made previously to allow Booster Club members to participate with proceeds going towards retirement of the club's debt for the football field lighting system.

The board approved an agreement for Booster Club members to man the gates at sporting events and be paid as established by the Athletic Council.

Decker suggested that the board should start talking about additional classroom space. Decker asked for capacity reports from all the schools. The board agreed to consider the subject at the next meeting and set up a committee.

Mrs. Nettie Romasavage, director, requested to be recognized on the agenda under "other reports if any" toward the closing of the meeting. Mrs. Romasavage requested written verification of the schools audit.

Rinker said he has repeatedly addressed Mrs. Romasavage on the matter and according to the oral report by the auditor the audit was satisfactory.

Rinker said if Mrs. Romasavage had nothing of "pertinence" to add to the board, the board would continue with action on the motion to pay bills. Board members approved payment of the bills, without action stated by Mrs. Romasavage and adjourned.

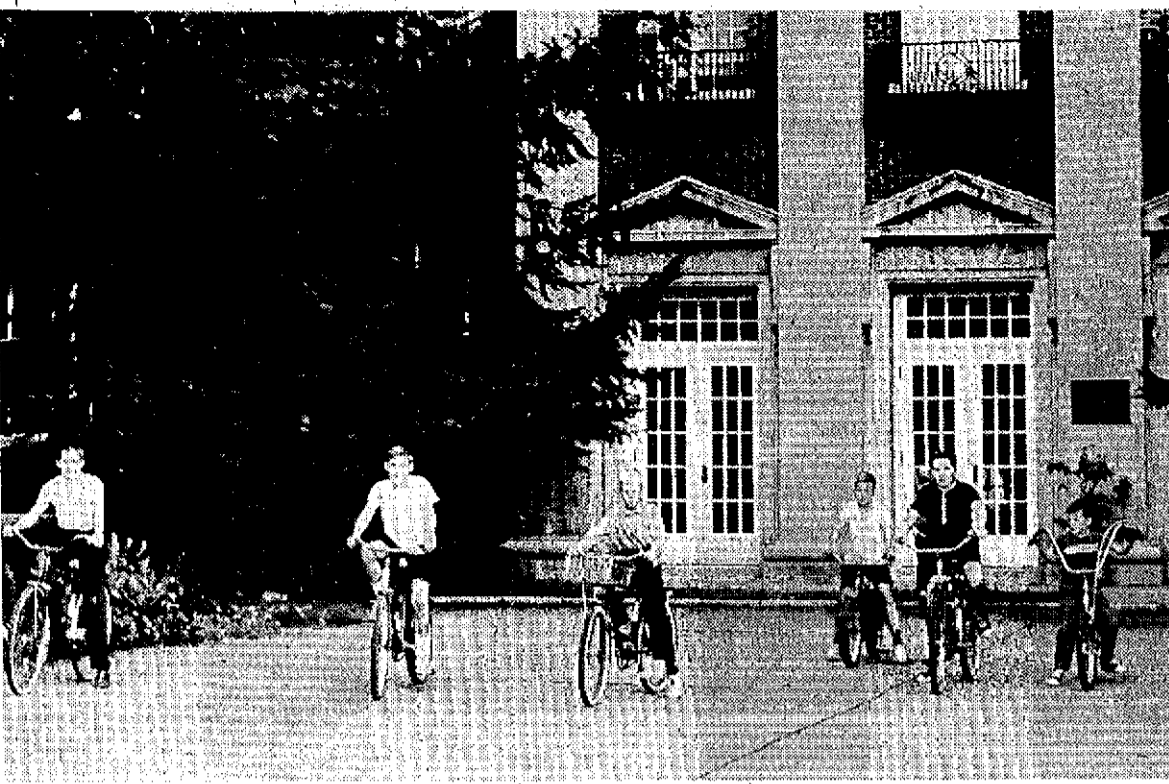

HHH soundly trounced in Eastburg

EAST STROUDSBURG — Richard M. Nixon, Republican candidate for President of the United States, won over Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey by better than a 2-1 margin in an election held at East Stroudsburg Junior-Senior High School this week.

County laboratory rushing flu vaccine

By PETE GRADY
Pocono Record Reporter

SWITZWATER — National Drug, a division of Richardson-Merill, one of the largest drug companies in the world is bracing itself for a crash program to produce enough vaccine to stem an impending epidemic of one of the oldest scourges in the world—flu.

"There's no question it's spreading," Dr. Anthony Boly, director of the biological laboratory firm in Switzwater, said Thursday.

"Outbreaks of flu have already been reported in Georgia, California, and Washington. There's a strong possibility of a major flu epidemic sweeping across the nation this winter."

Boly's warning bears out U.S. health officials' comments Tuesday. They warned the country that a new strain of flu, which broke out in Hong Kong in July, could very well produce a nationwide bout with flu reaching epidemic proportions.

This year National Drug will produce massive quantities of a flu vaccine called "Mono-Valent, Hong Kong Variant." Mono-Valent will contain only one virus which is grown in an egg.

"We know the virus that will cause the epidemic," Boly said. The more virus in one injection, the more potency for immunizing a person against the flu.

Last year National Drug produced large batches of "Bi-Valent" vaccine which contained two viruses. This vaccine was found to be much more effective than "Poly-Valent" vaccine which had been used in prior years.

The rule of thumb seems to be that the higher number of different virus strains in one vaccine, the less effectiveness the vaccine will have on warding off flu. Hence, from "Poly-Valent" (at least four different virus strains in one vaccine) to Mono-Valent, one virus packed tightly into one vaccine for a more effective power punch to knock-out the flu.

The 1918 influenza epidemic was the most destructive in the history of this infectious respiratory disease, caused by a filterable virus, since the plague of Justinian and the Black Death.

More than 20 million persons died of influenza in a few months, or four per cent of the total population, are said to have been killed by influenza in the fall of 1918. In the United States 540,000 died; it was nothing for a man to go to work healthy in the morning and wind up in an evening newspaper's obituary column.

In contrast, the pandemic (world epidemic) of 1889-1900 which also had a high attack rate, had a mortality of less than one-tenth that of 1918.

Influenza has a tendency towards "waves" of infection. A mild, world-wide epidemic in the spring and early summer of 1918 was followed by the astoundingly severe epidemic in the fall; a third rise in the spring of 1919 was quite irregular and was of doubtful relation to the preceding two.

Reports are confusing as to whether an attack in the first wave gave resistance to the second.

Housing studies call for action

STROUDSBURG — Inroads are being made to provide new and improved housing—primarily low income—in Monroe County, but what is needed now is action.

This was the consensus at the conclusion of a two-hour meeting Thursday night in the Stroudsburg Methodist Church when a five-member panel discussed "Fair Housing—Progress in the Stroudsburgs."

County receives land grant

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Commissioners Thursday announced the receipt of a $20,100 contract from the Department of Agriculture, State Soil and Water Conservation Commission, as a partial reimbursement for land acquisition expenses.

The expenses were accrued by the county when land was purchased for construction of the Broadhead Creek Dams. Total expenditures for the land has been set at $116,000.

In other business, Jackson Township Supervisors Russell Frable, John Everett and Sterling Miller presented the commissioners with a request for an additional liquid fuel allocation.

The request was for $2,000 to be used for widening and shaling two dirt roads this fall, prior to blacktopping the surfaces next year.

The township has received one allocation this year totaling $5,000, Miller said. "We (the township) need all the help we can get," as he explained about the five tax-free camps and hundreds of acres of state gamelands within the township boundaries which lower the tax base.

In response to the request, Chairman Elwood Hintze said, "Our liquid fuel money for this year is pretty well expended. Our allocation this year was for $130,000 and we have allocated nearly all of this and you can't spend something you don't have."

Hintze suggested the possibility that the supervisors could draw the $2,000 against their proposed allocation for next year.

The request was tabled by the commissioners until the matter can be studied in greater detail.

The commissioners approved the hiring of Mrs. Shirley Roberts, East Stroudsburg, as a fulltime secretary in the Monroe County Children's Bureau at an annual salary of $3,742. She will replace Mrs. Joseph Rivo who resigned.

Commissioner Arlington (Bud) Martin reported that the Monroe County Soil and Water Conservation District will be sponsoring a "Planting Foliage" conservation air tour on Saturday, October 12.

Flights from the Stroudsburg Pocono Airport will tour the county's conservation area, concentrating in the western part of the county.

According to Martin, all points of interest will be marked on the ground to facilitate seeing them from the air.

Tickets for the flight will cost $3.25 as opposed to the usual price of $4.00 and the public is cordially invited, said Martin.

Commissioner Nancy Shukaitis proposed that all department heads be requested to submit a complete inventory of items in their department with the exception of consumable items, to the commissioners. The proposal was unanimously approved.

More than 50 persons attended to listen to progress reports in studies for future housing needs from the following panelists:

Wealthy Kortz, chairman of the board of the Housing Authority; Rev. David G. High of the Better Housing Council; Rev. John Bendik of the Inter-Racial Council; Jesse Lynch of the Monroe County chapter of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People and Michael Cabot, Stroudsburg planning consultant. Bruce Frassenelli was moderator.

The need to provide housing in both the Stroudsburgs and Monroe County is imminent, it was disclosed at the meeting and both panelists and interested residents in attendance stressed that now is the time for action.

Cabot explained that numerous alternatives are available to provide housing but that the most prominent may be formation of a non-profit organization to construct low income housing units.

Rev. High said that the Better Housing Council may very well follow this course and become a non-profit organization and construct housing facilities.

Supplementing the need for housing was the need to end discrimination against Negroes. This need was stressed by both Lynch and Rev. Bendik.

While all of the organizations represented on the panel have shown progress during the past year to its common goal of supplying more housing, the most visible sign was described by Cabot as being in Stroudsburg.

Cabot explained that the Borough Council recently approved the Planning Commission suggestion that Stofflet Street become the high priority project for redevelopment to provide housing. After Stofflet Street, the First Ward would follow.

Before the borough can officially begin its Stofflet Street task, it must have a workable program in order to be eligible for federal funds. The Borough has recently adopted numerous codes such as housing and plumbing and must wait six months before submitting the workable program.

Cabot said the borough will work with the Redevelopment Authority of Monroe County in preparing the workable program which will be submitted to federal officials six months after the codes have been in effect.

Panelists said in order to accomplish the housing goals, community apathy will have to be erased.

Money—the need for it—seemed to be the prime objective and Lynch said, "It seems to me if we can get something working...to accommodate our community, we can arrange to have homes built."

Pike woman guarded after shooting

GREENTOWN — A 46-year-old Pike County woman was rushed to Scranton General Hospital Wednesday with a gunshot wound in her chest. Late Thursday night her condition remained guarded.

Mrs. Ann Koerner of Greene Township was discovered by her 16-year-old son, Gary, when he returned home at 8:45 p.m. Wednesday to find his mother in a room with a .22 calibre Martin rifle on a nearby bed.

Dr. Frank Uridel of Newfoundland was called to the Koerner home where Mrs. Koerner told him that the gunshot wound was self-inflicted.

The Frey Funeral Home Ambulance took Mrs. Koerner to the hospital. Police have not been able to talk to Mrs. Koerner due to her guarded condition.

Green Bay favored by 7 over Detroit

By STEVE SMILANICH
UPI Sports Writer

The Green Bay Packers, who win so often they consider a single loss a losing streak, try to avoid the embarrassment of a second successive setback Sunday in a key National Football League battle against the revitalized Detroit Lions.

The Packers and Lions, tied with 1-1 records in the NFL's Coastal Division and one game behind the pace-setting Minnesota Vikings, clash at Green Bay with the Packers favored by seven points.

The game is one of eight on the full NFL schedule which also sends Minnesota against the reeling Chicago Bears at Minneapolis, the Dallas Cowboys to Philadelphia, and the Los Angeles Rams to Cleveland.

Other games pit Baltimore against Pittsburgh, Washington at New York in the Giants' home opener, Atlanta at San Francisco and St. Louis at New Orleans.

Green Bay, still unable to show any consistency under new Coach Phil Bengtson, fell to Minnesota 26-13 last Sunday.

The Lions have beaten the Packers just once in their last 10 outings but Detroit always makes it tough for Green Bay and this time around the Lions have the momentum going for them.

The Lions broke into the win column in a big way a week ago by blasting the Chicago Bears 42-0. Chief engineers in the Bear trouncing were quarterback Bill Munson, making his first start in a Detroit uniform, and Lem Barney and Earl McCulloch.

Munson, who was traded to the Lions by the Los Angeles Rams, passed for 279 yards and three touchdowns against the Bears while the Lions defense, led by Barney, had eight interceptions. Two of Munson's touchdown passes were to McCulloch, who might well be the fastest rookie in the league.

Dallas, co-leader with the Giants in the Capital Division with 2-0 records, is a 14-point choice over a Philadelphia club which is still looking for an aerial attack to complement the running of Tom Woodeshick.

The Giants are a five-point pick over the Redskins but the New York defense will be given a stern test by Sonny Jurgensen, the league's top passer.

Baltimore, also 2-0 in Coastal Division play, goes against Pittsburgh with Earl Morrall handling the quarterbacking in place of injured Johnny Unitas. The Colts thought Unitas might return to action but Coach Don Shula said Unitas' elbow still bothered him and he wouldn't play Sunday.

Los Angeles and Cleveland are expected to draw 80,000 fans for the Browns' home opener. The Rams are 2-0 in Coastal Division play while the Browns are 1-1 in Century Division competition.

Coach George Allen of the Rams is hopeful of another sparkling performance by Roman Gabriel, who hit 17 of 23 passes in last Sunday's 45-10 triumph over Pittsburgh.

Allen called the effort against Pittsburgh "our best game of the year" and said Gabriel was "as good as he was in beating Baltimore in last year's final game." The Rams are favored by nine.

Minnesota, combining a rugged defense and a controlling offense in posting a pair of victories, also is a nine-point choice over the Bears.

The Vikings will rely on the running of Bill Brown, the NFL's top scorer with 30 points, and quarterback Joe Kapp, the refugee from the Canadian League.

The sputtering St. Louis Cardinals will have soldier-boy Charley Johnson at the starting quarterback spot against the Saints. Coach Charley Winner said Johnson will take over for Jim Hart "who has been pressing too much." Johnson's Army duties have permitted him to work out two or three days a week with the Cards.

San Francisco finds itself in the rare role as a favorite with the Forty Niners a 14-point choice over Atlanta.

Siegfried ends his holdout

BOSTON (UPI)—Guard Larry Siegfried ended his holdout with the Boston Celtics Thursday, signing a contract which contained no special stipulation against trading him to any other National Basketball Association team.

The Celtics said Siegfried, a five-year veteran from Ohio State, agreed to terms with General Manager Red Auerbach following only a brief discussion.

Siegfried signed for "the club's original offer, which included a raise from last season," a Celtics spokesman said. And, he added, "the contract did not include any special clauses such as one that would prevent the Celtics from trading Larry if they want to."

Terms of the contract were not disclosed, but it was reliably placed at close to $32,000. Siegfried averaged 12.1 points a game last season.

The statement renewed speculation that Siegfried, 23, was on the trading block where he has been reported to have been for some time. Under the rules, players cannot be traded before signing their contracts.

The Celtics noted that the signing was completed between the veteran guard and Auerbach, and nobody else was present. Siegfried's lawyer, Boston attorney Robert Woolf, had sat in during six earlier meetings between the player and Auerbach, including a short session Wednesday.

The defending NBA Champions said Siegfried went directly to Tobin Gynnasium in Boston's Roxbury section to join a scheduled practice session after agreeing to terms. The Celtics returned to Boston earlier in the day after dropping the team's first two pre-season exhibitions to the Atlanta Hawks.

O'Toole ready for Vanderbilt

WEST POINT, N. Y. (UPI)—Jim O'Toole, Army's No. 2 quarterback, is expected to be back in uniform Saturday when the Cadets host Vanderbilt at Michie Stadium.

O'Toole, backup signal caller for Steve Lindell, has been out with injuries.

Fight with government may keep Cassius out of ring

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Cassius Clay's efforts to get back in the ring after an 18-month layoff may be blocked by the fact his fight with the federal government over his draft status is still pending.

"I'm not interested in anybody who is not interested in fighting for the United States of America," said Mayor M. E. Sosenbrenner. "It's the greatest country on the face of the earth."

Sosenbrenner's executive assistant, James T. Bally, was even more vehement in his criticism of Clay, or Muhammad Ali as he prefers to be called.

"Cassius Clay is not welcome in Columbus until such time as he resolves his dispute with the federal government in reference to his draft status," Bally said.

Clay is scheduled to meet a yet unnamed opponent at the 9,000 seat state Fairgrounds Coliseum Nov. 11 in a 15-round bout that has been sanctioned by the Columbus City Boxing Commission.

Ohio does not have a state boxing commission.

John Hewitt, chairman of the seven member city commission, said the commission has not been asked to stop the fight and won't take the initiative.

"We are not prejudiced in any way, shape or form," said Hewitt.

But, Clay has more problems than just the city officials who are against his appearance—like being 20 pounds overweight.

Clay wondered aloud whether he could get back in shape for a fight he calls "a world championship" battle.

"I've got 20 pounds to lose," Clay mused. "It's almost impossible."

"Whoever fights me, he really

Notre Dame end Jim Seymour (L), and QB Terry Hanratty, the Fighting Irish's great passing combination, take time out from practice for Saturday's game with Purdue to catch up with their studies.

Home field could give Irish big edge over Boilermakers

CHICAGO (UPI)—Notre Dame vs. Purdue, an early season confrontation between two of college football's 1968 Goliaths, headlines the grid slate Saturday with top national ranking awaiting the winner.

The Irish were six point favorites but none of the initiated were counting Purdue out. However, the home field could give Notre Dame a big edge.

Purdue's Jack Mollenkopf, always a voluble critic of the noise of the Irish fans in the Notre Dame stadium, planned to prepare his squad for the expected storm.

His practices this week have featured a sound truck blaring on the sidelines with crowd noises, and he has told the television planners that they can not introduce his players on the Notre Dame side of the field. It will have to be done before what Purdue fans can crowd into the arena.

The game will feature some of the nation's standout college stars with Heisman trophy candidate Leroy Keyes and quarterback Mike Phipps expected to shine for Purdue.

On the Notre Dame side there will be the standout passing combination of Terry Hanratty, another potential Heisman winner, and end Jim Seymour, already the greatest pass catcher in Notre Dame history.

Notre Dame will go into the game with the No. 1 ranking nationally and Purdue No. 2. But despite the result of their struggle and the probable top berth, each team will have eight games remaining and the winner could be hard pressed to defend the top rung the rest of the way.

"I think it's too early in the season to rate the teams," Irish coach Ara Parseghian said. "After one or two games, you can't rate the teams accurately. We should wait until they've had four or five games for a true picture."

The nation's No. 3 rated club, Southern California, will be playing in the same area as Notre Dame-Purdue, appearing at Northwestern as a 17 point choice.

The Trojans also will be showing off a standout Heisman nominee in O.J. Simpson, a halfback who ran second in the voting for the award last year and who almost single handedly produced a win for the Trojans over Minnesota in the opening game. Northwestern lost its opener to Miami of Florida.

Ohio State, with only a nine game schedule, opens its season at home as a 12 point pick over Southern Methodist, while Michigan State at home aims for its second win as a 10 point favorite over Baylor. Wisconsin seeks a win in its first game on a new artificial turf at home, as an eight point underdog to Washington, while Minnesota at home was a five point pick over Nebraska.

Only one Big Ten team was a favorite for a road win: Michigan rated a point over Duke. Kansas was a six point choice over Indiana. Texas Christian rated five over Iowa, and Missouri five over Illinois.

Houston, Oakland top AFL clash

By WILLIAM VERIGAN
UPI Sports Writer

Daryle Lamonia is No. 1 and he's carrying the Oakland Raiders right along with him.

The Raiders go against the Houston Oilers on Sunday in an anticlimax to their American Football League championship meeting last year. The Raiders beat the Oilers 40-6 in the title game, and Oakland is expected to humble the Eastern Division champions again this time.

Lamonia leads the league in passing with 25 completions in 54 attempts for 511 yards and five touchdowns. His four TDs against Miami last week equaled his personal high and he set a new personal record with 344 yards passing, 306 in the first half.

Oakland has averaged 476.5 yards in winning its two games this year, and 211.5 yards per contest came on the ground, making the Raiders the best running club in the AFL. They have scored 95 points while limiting the opposition to only 27.

The Kansas City Chiefs (2-1) meet the Miami Dolphins (0-2) on Saturday, and in Sunday AFL action the Boston Patriots (1-1) face the Denver Broncos (0-2), the New York Jets (2-0) take on the Buffalo Bills (0-3) and the San Diego Chargers (2-0) meet the Cincinnati Bengals (2-1).

Hewitt Dixon, who has 194 yards on 33 carries, and Pete Banaszak, with 121 yards on 19 tries, lead the Oakland running attack, and Lamonia has a host of receivers to choose from, including Fred Biletnikoff with seven catches for 121 yards.

Pete Beathard ran into hard luck with two interceptions as the Oilers lost to San Diego 30-14 last weekend, but the signal caller has completed 53 passes in 102 tries for 822 yards as Houston has run up a 1-2 mark.

New York's offense probably will be strengthened against Buffalo by the return of fullback Matt Snell to a starting role. Snell combines with Emerson Boozer to give the Jets a solid running attack and complement the passing of Joe Namath. Snell came to terms with the Jets in the middle of the week, and he had threatened not to play without a contract. Last week, before Snell signed, Bill Mathis had started.

Buffalo, already without a seasoned quarterback, might have more problems this week because rookie quarterback Dan Darragh suffered a bruised finger last week. The running game will be helped by the return of Keith Lincoln. End Bobby Crockett, who has been out since early training camp, also will be back in the lineup.

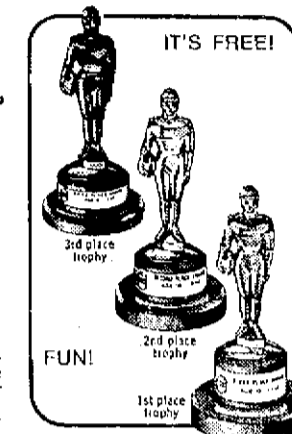

Boston quarterback Mike Taliaferro, acquired from New York just before the season started, was intercepted four times against his former teammates last week to wreck the Patriots' chances, and the Broncos' signal calling situation is even more desperate without any effective replacement for injured Steve Tensi.

Quarterback Bob Griese, who has hit for TDs in eight straight games, and a rookie running combo, Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick, pace the Miami attack.

Cincinnati is expected to be thwarted in its bid for a record three consecutive victories by an expansion club, when it meets San Diego.

Newspaper Route Openings In These Neighborhoods:

• Stroud Township—New residential section of Stroud Township at Lourdes Ave., Christopher St., Pleasant Ave. Area.

• East Stroudsburg—College hill section. Concentrated route on East Brown, Prospect and Normal Streets.

Both are excellent routes — large enough for good profits and small enough for quick delivery before school.

If your son is between the ages of 12-14, we'd be glad to discuss a "Little Merchant" newspaper franchise with you.

Immediate openings, but consideration given to first callers. Phone the circulation department today.

JACK O'BRIAN'S

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Aspiring young married politician risks his reputation nightly in the most public places with a succession of glamor babes...His last lugubrious known romantic incident — a female he was financing turned out also to be under the romantically financial spell of one of his avowed enemies.

The Matzner publications in New Jersey (affected by the sizzling murder case there) quietly are up for sale...Copacabana beauty Linda Ramirez, 19, and Grand Union adman Tom Flynn will wed...Opera star Licia Albanese's 16-year-old son, Pepino, just got his Connecticut driver's license and is yearning to borrow the family car for his first date: it has a bar, telephone, television set, game table, radio...Just lock him into the safety belt, mom.

Mickey Rooney's an inventor — he's patented a triple-lens camera he calls the "omnicamera" to be peddled by the "XI Corp."...Harold Arlen's composing new tunes for the "House of Flowers" film...Harold Gary won the (deserved) best notices in "The Price" in a role he took over on a moment's notice; it hasn't been noted Edward G. Robinson was the first choice for the part but turned it down...We've found Arthur Miller's recent dramas consistently slanted and lacking stage-honesty, but to give the dramaticatistal poseur his due, the role of the 89-year-old antique dealer in "The Price" is a marvelously true portrait; the only role of integrity in all of it.

Puccini's "One Fine Day" from "Madame Butterfly" must be in the public domain at last; half a dozen pop-tunes are on the market parroting Puccini's rich melody...Many decades ago the late John Golden got rich on one song, "Poor Butterfly," which he did not steal from Puccini — he simply wrote a lyric which compressed the whole opera's libretto into a 32-bar pop song. More honest than the imitators.

Some television cat opined that Tiny Tim is "this year's Liberace," but ignored the fact that Liberace has more talent for music than the cut-rate psychologist has for comparisons...Tim is more this year's Mrs. Miller...Tony Curtis peddled one of his three Bel Air mansions to Danny Apolinar, co-author and star of the hippie-hit "Your Own Thing."

Four Plaza Hotel suites were reserved for Tony Quinn for his entourage coming to the Nov. 13 "Shoes of the Fisherman" premiere at the De Mille Theatre...He's bringing his wife and their Instant Family, plus kids from his prior marriage, two governesses and secretary-valet...Nixon's campaign needs $20,000,000 and he's getting it on the basis of "he can't lose" polls.

French Olympics ski champ Jean Claude Killy will make a reputed $500,000 for General Motors public relations (including products bearing his name) and already he's bought an $185,000 French Riviera villa...Michele Morgan (here for her own dress business) relaxed at Trude Heller's Village fruggerie with Marc Fisher of the art establishment...New MGM movie will be titled simply "Wayne!" and not with, by or about John.

The town of Cabo Frio in Brazil gave Brigitte Bardot her own beachfront tract when she visited there in 1965 with old-beau R. Zagari, hoping she'd build on it and become a tourist attraction; they were Incavigers — just took it back because BB didn't bother paying the taxes...Henry Slezar, writer of the soap opera, "Edge of Night," is the big backer on Nita Barnett's groovy little

E. 74th St. dining spot "The Mood."

Books on spiritualism insist most American mediums with psychic gifts come from around the Buffalo-Niagara Falls region; something about the titanic effect of Niagara Falls (and exotic Buffalo is our home town; which may explain an occasional trance when we're supposed to be working).

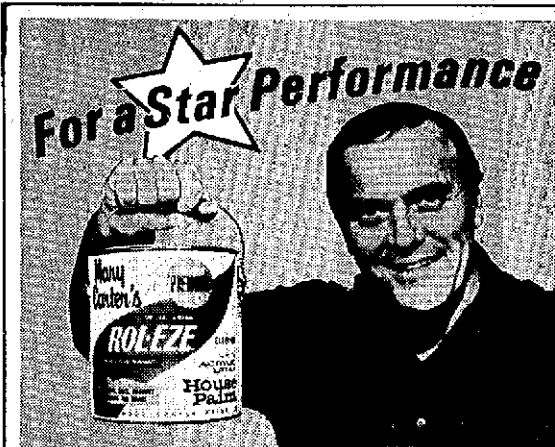

When Jack Carter delivered the eulogy for his late father, his sincerity was so affecting his pals complimented him after the service on the depth and seriousness of the usually brash joker. Jack reverted fast: "I told you I could play a straight role," was his explanation.

Mark Twain predicted in the 1880s that in 100 years black people would be masters and whites their slaves...When ABC fired a female TV-caster, the network was asked for an explanation, and replied: "When you fire someone like her you don't have to explain!"...Barbara Eden of television spent a fortune on a nightclub act, but she's going back to the tube...The Time mag mailroom is going simply crayzee! They have two Gerry Kirschenbaums whose mail keeps crossing.

Winnie and Jack (Baron Munchausen) Pearl celebrated their 43rd wedding anniversary at Christo's: Jack captured Winnie when he was the star and she a "pony" in the musical "Dancing Girl" and it took Jack a year and a half, after the show opened at the Winter Garden in Jan., 1923, to capture the Hamilton, Ont. mini-beauty...Good thing he did — Winnie hung onto and invested Jack's cash in the big-money days so he's now a millionaire in the rocking-chair years.

Out item a bit ago about HHH's Larry O'Brien had a big offer from Howard Hughes was corroborated by this weeks Newsweek...which says Larry O'Brien gave his predecessor as National Democratic chairman, John Bailey, the subtledownpush: replaced his Imperial limo with a rented Ford...TWA's Royal Ambassador flight to Los Angeles offers, perhaps for laughs, "Fun City Green Beans?" Inflation, or chutzpah? Abjectly stoned mendicant on Times Square at 43rd asked passerby, "Can you spare a dollar, pal?"
